Mission: Provide youth with opportunities to establish contacts with community resources and enhance decision-making skills necessary for living in a socially complex world.

The Quad Cities Youth Conference has been serving the middle / high school youth of Rock Island, Scott, and surrounding counties for 35 years as unifying force driving to accomplish the following goals:

- Provide decision-making skill development.
- Assist youth in connecting to community agencies.
- Bridge communication between parents and teenage children
- Foster relationships between schools and community agencies to better utilize funding and reduce duplication of services.

The Quad Cities Youth Conference is an annual two-day event consisting of a keynote address, community resource, college, / career fair and workshops.

Previous workshop topics: gender labels, stress management, internet safety, jobs, and education opportunities, seeking help, prescription drugs, resilience, and suicide.

The 36th Annual Quad Cities Youth Conference is delayed until 2022.

QCYC intends to stay connected and serve the community in new ways during 2021 through alternative activities. We are excited to and start planning for QCYC '22.

The Quad Cities Youth Conference is a non-profit organization and depends on the generosity of others, especially local employers, and volunteer groups.
